

LeadAC — product marketing context

This file is the entry point every marketing-related agent reads first. It exists because the architecture rule references it and other context files (MARKETING.md, POSITIONING.md, BUYER-PERSONA.md) build on top of it.

If you are about to write copy, an ad, an email, a landing page, a blog post, or a social caption for LeadAC, read this end to end before anything else.

What LeadAC is

LeadAC is the local lead-intelligence layer for agencies that sell to local businesses.

It pulls fresh Google Maps leads no other agency has, runs a 20-plus signal audit on every site, scores fit 0-100, and drafts the opener grounded in what the audit found. The output is a lead dossier ready for your pipeline review, plus a draft email that does the homework instead of pretending to. Sends through Smartlead, Instantly, GHL, Gmail, or Outlook. We do not replace the sender. We feed it.

What we are NOT replacing

This is the most common misframe — kill it on sight if you see it in copy:

- Apollo stays. Apollo owns enterprise B2B contacts. We own local. They cover what we don't. Most agencies run LeadAC in front of Apollo, not instead of it. Never write "Apollo alternative" or "replace Apollo" in canonical positioning. (The /alternatives/apollo-alternative programmatic SEO page is a separate beast — that's a search-intent capture surface, not a positioning claim. Different rules.)
- Smartlead / Instantly stay. They are the sender. We feed them.

- Clay stays for what it's good at. Clay is the heavy enrichment Lego set. We are a finished motion for one specific buyer (local-business outbound).

What we DO collapse: the research VA and the per-prospect homework that an SDR pretends to do but doesn't have time for. That is the cost line we replace.

Mockup feature — vertical only, not homepage pillar

LeadAC also ships a one-page site mockup generator. It is not a general-marketing pillar. Mockup belongs on the walk-in web agency landing, the SMMA web-services landing, and inside Pro+ feature lists. It does NOT belong in the homepage hero, hero pill, headline stats, or canonical positioning. B2B outbound agency buyers care about quality leads and audit signal, not “I will design your prospect a free site.” Treat mockup like AI receptionist or review-reply: a Pro-tier feature, not the headline.

Who buys it

Agency owners running outbound for local-business clients. Specifically:

- B2B outbound agencies (1 to 10 SDRs)
- SMMA owners (1 to 5 person social/web agencies)
- Specialists going solo (Klaviyo, paid social, SEO operators starting their own book)
- Walk-in web/local-services agencies
- F&B and restaurant-tech BD teams (smaller ICP, but sticky)
- Local SEO agencies (GMB pitch upgrade)

Not for: enterprise SDR teams, product-led growth motions, B2C, anyone who sells software to companies above 200 employees.

The full persona file is `BUYER-PERSONA.md` at the repo root.

What changed in 2025-2026 (why we exist)

Three things broke the previous outbound stack:

1. Apollo and Clay are selling the same 50M contacts to thousands of agencies. The receiving inbox has seen the same prospect ten times this month.

2. GPT first-line generators all sound the same. Reply rates dropped from 3-4% to under 2% across the industry through 2025. “I noticed you...” is a deliverability liability now.
3. Hand-writing each email caps an SDR at maybe 10 prospects a day. That is not a pipeline.

LeadAC is the third path: fresh local data nobody else has, a real audit attached to every email, and an opener that references something the prospect can see on their own homepage right now. Different fuel, not louder personalization.

Voice rules (non-negotiable)

Pick three, in order:

1. Operator to operator. We have sent cold email. We know which lines work and which ones get marked as spam. Speak like that. Skip the “transformative AI” register.
2. Outcome before mechanism. “3 booked calls per week” before “Google Maps Places API + Gemini 1.5”. The mechanism is interesting later.
3. No AI hype lexicon. See banned/preferred lists below.

Voice should sound like a senior agency owner who is tired of the noise. Not a marketing department. Not a Y Combinator pitch. Not a Twitter thread.

Banned words and phrases

These get caught in the humanizer pass. Do not ship copy that contains them.

- “agent” or “AI agent” (when describing LeadAC itself)
- “copilot” (the existing Copilot UI element keeps the name internally; do NOT rename it for marketing)
- “memory loop”, “compounding intelligence”, “compounding part”
- “transformative”, “groundbreaking”, “revolutionary”, “cutting-edge”
- “delve”, “leverage”, “synergy”, “robust”, “seamless”, “intuitive”
- “stands as”, “serves as”, “marks a pivotal moment”, “in the rapidly evolving landscape”
- “Despite challenges, X continues to thrive”
- “Whether you’re a... or a...” (false range)

- Em dashes (—). Use periods or commas.
- “Let’s dive in”, “without further ado”, “here’s what you need to know”
- Rule of three lists when two would do
- “It’s not just X, it’s Y” (negative parallelism)
- Title Case In Headings (use sentence case)

Preferred phrases

- “Your playbook, automated”
- “Fresh signals” (vs Apollo’s exhaust)
- “The homework attached to every email”
- “What changes for your team”
- “Different fuel, not louder personalization”
- “Retainer-grade clients in week 4, not pilot calls in month 2”
- Specific numbers: “1 to 2 replies per 200”, “47% mockup-click rate”, “$1,500/mo retainer”

Tone calibration sample

Before:

Leadac stands as a pivotal evolution in the agency outbound landscape, unlocking compounding intelligence through its memory loop and AI agents — empowering operators to deliver seamless, intuitive, and groundbreaking results.

After:

LeadAC pulls fresh leads off Google Maps, runs a real audit on each one before you write a word, and drops the homework into the opener so it does not read like every other AI cold email. The same SDR seat, different fuel.

Three lines the founder uses internally (lift these for copy)

These are the lines the founder keeps repeating when describing what LeadAC is for. They translate well to hero copy, ad copy, and outbound subject lines.

- “For your agency to close 3 more deals a month.”

- “Your SDR’s brain, in software.”
- “Lead dossiers ready for your end-of-month pipeline review.”

Positioning sentence (canonical)

Memorize this. Every page should rhyme with it.

For agency owners running outbound to local-business clients, LeadAC is the local lead-intelligence layer that covers the gap Apollo and Clay leave open. We pull live from Google Maps, audit every site, and ground the opener in what the audit found. Most agencies run LeadAC in front of Apollo, not instead of it.

The full version (3 paragraphs) and the “Apollo stays” reasoning are in `POSITIONING.md` § 3-4.

Pricing logic (current)

Source of truth: `src/lib/plans.ts`. Marketing surfaces should read from there or stay in sync with these numbers.

MDCSV↔ Expand

FREE	(sunset, see below)	$0	1	50	3
PRO	Solo	$79	1	1,000	50
PRO_TEAM	Studio	$149	3	2,500	150
AGENCY	Agency+	$249	5	5,000	300

GBP pricing: £59 / £99 / £199 (no GBP for FREE since FREE is sunsetting).

Annual: 20% off effective monthly rate.

ROI argument that always works:

249/moAgency+=249/moAgency+= 8/day. One closed local-business client at $1,500/mo retainer pays it back 75x over the year.

FREE plan decision

Sunset. Replaced with a 14-day trial that requires a card. Full reasoning in `docs/decisions/free-plan-sunset.md`. The hype tourists were the loudest tenant of FREE and they never converted; agency buyers expect a trial with a card on file.

This means: kill copy that says “no credit card”, “50 free leads”, “start free”, “free forever”. Replace with “14-day trial · cancel any time · refund window if it doesn’t earn you a reply.”

Until the Stripe + UI work for trial flow ships, the marketing flag `MARKETING_COMING_SOON` keeps “Launching soon” CTAs visible. Do not ship copy that contradicts the flag’s current state.

Evidence layer (what we can claim)

We are pre-revenue at scale. Most numbers are from the FineDine beta cohort (Camden / North London cafes, 12 leads, May 2026). Until paid customers ship case studies, copy must:

- Cite specific cohort metrics where they exist (47 audited leads in 5 minutes is real and DB-backed; 4% reply rate is industry benchmark, not our number yet)
- Use anonymized customer language (“F&B SaaS BD team running Camden cafe outreach”) until written permission lands
- Avoid invented testimonial names. The Reddit pull-quotes on the homepage today are sourced from `r/coldemail`, `r/SMMA`, `r/agency`. Keep them attributed correctly. Replace with real named operators when they exist.

When in doubt about a claim: pull it. Do not stretch it.

Asset inventory

- Brand kit: `public/leadac-brand-kit.pdf`, `public/brand-kit.html`, `public/logo.png`

- Cinematic palette tokens: `src/app/globals.css (--cine-*)`
- Component library: `src/components/marketing/cine/*`
- Hero scroll-frames: `public/frames/` (currently empty; falls back to gradient)
- Hero loop video (deferred): `public/hero-loop.mp4`
- FineDine beta artifacts (NOT public): `research/finedine/*`

i18n state

- Active: English only. `src/lib/i18n/config.ts` exports `["en"]`.
- TR launch is Phase I in the web-presence overhaul plan. Do not ship `/tr` routes or TR copy until the i18n flip is approved.

Where to look when writing for a specific surface

MDCSV↔ Expand

Homepage	<code>src/app/(marketing)/page.tsx</code> , <code>MARKETING.md</code> § Homepage
Vertical landing	<code>src/components/marketing/vertical-landing/*</code> , <code>BUYER-PERSONA.md</code> for that vertical
Pricing page	<code>src/lib/plans.ts</code> , <code>MARKETING.md</code> § Pricing
Programmatic SEO page	<code>src/app/(public)/{niches,cities,alternatives,vs}/...</code> , <code>programmatic-seo</code> skill
Blog post	<code>src/app/(public)/blog/[slug]/page.tsx</code> , <code>content-strategy</code> skill
Cold email / nurture	<code>cold-email</code> skill, <code>email-sequence</code> skill

What this file is NOT

It is not a positioning doc (see `POSITIONING.md`).

It is not a buyer persona doc (see `BUYER-PERSONA.md`).

It is not a copy book with hero/sub for every page (see `MARKETING.md`).

It is not a roadmap (see the web-presence plan in `.cursor/plans/`).

If you are about to read this file twice in the same session, you are probably looking for one of the four files above instead.

Last updated: 2026-05-06 (Phase A of web-presence overhaul).